DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

Species A, image forming method 1, Figures 5A and 5B, drawn to setting the liquid crystal to a crystal phase, forming a visible image, and discoloring.

Species B, image forming method 2, drawn to setting to a liquid crystal phase, forming a latent image (isotropic phase), and developing color.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.

2. Please note that there are considerable inconsistencies with a few of the claims as noted below.

Concerning claims 4, 5, and 7-9:

Claim 4 recites "in the first heating process, the liquid crystal that has been heated to the first temperature is rapidly cooled down." If the liquid crystal is heated, by virtue of the application of a first heating process, heating cannot therefore rapidly cool down the liquid crystal. By its dependence on claim 4, claim 5 is unclear as well for similar reasons.

Claim 7 recites "in the second heating process, the liquid crystal that has been heated is rapidly cooled down." If the liquid crystal is heated, by virtue of the application of a second heating process, heating cannot therefore rapidly cool down the liquid crystal. By its dependence on claim 7, claims 8 and 9 are unclear as well for similar reasons.

Concerning claim 13:

Claim 13 recites an image forming method for forming an image on a reversible thermo-sensitive recording medium provided with a recording layer containing liquid crystal that exhibits a cholesteric liquid crystal phase, and further recites "changing a color of a portion of said area by heating said portion to a second temperature lower than said first temperature." One cannot heat to a lower temperature than a first temperature. The portion of the area subjected to heating will be at the first temperature and cannot be heated to a subsequently lower temperature than the first temperature. Perhaps Applicant meant to recite, "changing a color of a portion of said area by cooling said portion to a second temperature lower than said first temperature."

Because claims 14-17 depend from claim 13 they are unclear for similar reasons.
